

I am firmly AGAINST regulations requiring copy-protection to be built into all televisions in the future. These regulations do not do anything to prevent "piracy", but have everything to do with the large entertainment companies wanting more power over how the public uses the products they have legally purchased.

Any legislation that limits the legal rights of the consumers to use their equipment should not be passed. The rights of the consumers should be given far more weight than the rights of large companies looking to squeeze more money out of the public. Please do not allow this regulation to pass.
